

Five Ways to Talk with Your Loved One About End-of-Life Issues

- KEEP IT LIGHT. Have this talk at a time that is not serious. Try to make it a fun experience; reserve a private dining room in a restaurant or videotape it, film a family movie.
- IMMEDIATE FAMILY ONLY. Limiting this type of meeting to immediate family members is often more efficient. The group is smaller; your parent will likely be delighted to spend time with just his or her children and be more open to the discussion.
- DON'T MAKE IT AN INTERVENTION. Think about how you would like to be approached with such matters. Maybe start by sharing a story of another family in a similar situation or produce your pre-planning checklist and talk about how you are “getting your own affairs in order.”
- MAKE GOOD USE OF A HOLIDAY GATHERING. This may be when all family members are present and, therefore, a good opportunity to devote some of the time to discussing these details. Perhaps the oldest sibling could initiate the conversation, but no sibling should be left out.
- LIMIT INITIAL EXPECTATIONS. Even though a talk about end-of-life issues may have been on your mind for a while, it might not be top-of-mind for your parent. Allow your parent to process the proposals and maintain as much dignity and independence as possible. It might be easier than you imagine.
